

Robert Urtheil

Oliver Wyman

Robert H. Urtheil is a Partner in the Corporate and Institutional Banking Practice at Oliver Wyman. Based in Frankfurt and New York he leads the firm's global market infrastructure practice and has been with the firm since 2006.

He is focused on advising his clients on key topics in capital markets such as evolution of market structure and product creation, impact on governance, liquidity and consolidation, corporate development strategy and planning, post trade processing solutions including value of clearing, settlement, banking and custody services and regulatory strategies.

Before joining Oliver Wyman, he held various senior positions at Deutsche Börse Group, and worked as a derivatives trader.

Besides being a frequent speaker on industry topics at conferences, Robert has co-authored publications on developments and innovations in capital markets.

Robert holds a MSc. in Physics and a MA in Business Administration.
