

Clearstream Spotlight

Clearstream goes live with MyStandards

As one of the initial members in the pilot project, Clearstream has helped to shape SWIFT's MyStandards platform from the beginning and is now the first financial institution to officially share its messaging content with you. From January 2013, we will make available on MyStandards all asset servicing messaging for Clearstream Banking Luxembourg (corporate actions/income/tax data) and will gradually migrate the remaining business areas for Clearstream Banking Luxembourg (settlement, cash, etc) and Clearstream Banking Frankfurt throughout 2013.

What is MyStandards?

MyStandards is a collaborative web platform developed by SWIFT to better manage ISO messaging standards and market practices. All data elements information from leading financial institutions, market practice groups (e.g. SMPG) is stored physically together, giving you a complete overview and resulting in higher potential for straight-through processing.

MyStandards will help you reduce time, cost, effort and risk when implementing and managing messaging standards. The centralisation and consumability of standards information means:

- all Clearstream information will be presented on MyStandards and contextualised, thereby increasing the granularity of information (e.g. there will be specific templates per event for corporate actions, per country for settlement, etc.) and enabling higher rates of straight-through processing – information will be far easier to sort through
- risk of error will be considerably reduced because documentation can be produced automatically
- documentation on any release will be available more quickly
- enables customers to perform automatic comparison between different usage guidelines (e.g. new releases).

Registering on MyStandards is without cost and allows you to access all of our information online, as well as generate PDF reports and XML schema's for both our central securities depository and international central securities depository for free. More advanced features (such as comparison of message versions and specifications, as well as capturing of your own guidelines) can be accessed via a subscription with SWIFT.

We firmly believe MyStandards is a strong catalyst for straight-through processing improvements in the market and will facilitate increased standards adoption.
